COURT DELAYS DOHENY ACTION ON PIPE SUIT

MARTINEZ, Feb. 28.—Whether the Petroleum Securities Corporation, Doheny Company is to be prevented from laying pipe lines from the plant it is constructing in Richmond to tide-water will be decided by Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie on March 5.

With attorneys agreeing to postponement Judge McKenzie has delayed until next Tuesday hearing of arguments on a restraining order issued last Saturday on request of the Richmond Pressed Brick Company and the Henshaw Investment Company, both of which are asking that permanent injunctions issue.

The two concerns contend that the oil company is encroaching upon their property in laying the lines, but the oil firm claims that the line is being extended along a road.

Miss Barry's triumph came when she presented to County Clerk J. H. Wells a certified copy of her birth certificate, taken from San Francisco records to disprove the statement made by her mother that she is but 17 years of age. Confronted with documentary evidence of the girl's age the clerk had no alternative but to issue the wedding permit.

Miss Barry informed the clerk that she was to be married at the home of relatives at Rodeo. The girl's mother caused issuance of the license to be withheld, telephoning five minutes before the permit was to have been mailed that her daughter is but 17 years of age.

Amstutz, representative of the national Presbyterian church-building organization will be present to assist the committee in carrying out its work.

Women of the church will have charge of the dinner, and it has been announced that the women will be the guests of the men at their meeting next Friday.

Dr. Amstutz is encouraged by the activities of the church in their building program and stated that "Reports of the activities of the church for the past month when the loyalty campaign has been in progress are most encouraging. With the enthusiasm which I see among young and old in all departments the success of the outcome of the campaign cannot be doubted. This will be a week of great things for the First Presbyterian church of Richmond."

Rev. Earl W. Haney, pastor of the church was as optimistic in his view of the campaign.

"Everybody seems to greet the idea of the new church as the only solution of our pressing problem, said the pastor. "The unanimous sentiment in the congregation is most gratifying to us who feel that the present effort is of tremendous importance to the future of the church."

MARTINEZ, Feb. 28.—Charles J. Glysson, 27, former bookkeeper for Harry S. Curry, Richmond automobile dealer, pleaded guilty before Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie to a charge of grand theft, and was given five years probation.

Glysson voluntarily told the court that his pecuniations from Curry was $1195, although he was charged with stealing only $350. Accountants, it was said, working on Glysson's books, were unable to determine the correct amount of his thefts.

As a part of his probation Glysson must serve thirty days in the county jail and must repay the amount taken from Curry.

The order of restitution was not made effective for one year, in order to allow Glysson time to get on his feet after his jail sentence, Judge McKenzie said.

Telegraphic advices were received yesterday from Chief of Police August Vollmer of Berkeley directing that Glysson be held for the college city authorities to answer a charge against him in that city.

MARTINEZ, Feb. 28.—Alimony of $1 monthly, the smallest amount ever required in a court here, was fixed today by Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie when he granted an interlocutory decree of divorce to Manuel V. Braz of Bay Point from Mrs. Mary A. Braz.

Testimony showed that Braz had deeded the couple's home to his wife and had agreed that Mrs. Braz should have custody of a minor child. Although it appeared to the court that the child is well provided for now, Judge McKenzie fixed $1 support rate so that the court would not lose jurisdiction and so that if in the future a greater support allowance is necessary it can be provided.

County Body Is Addressed By S. F. Engineer In Martinez

By-laws and constitution were adopted and a finance committee appointed last night by Contra Costa Associated, the recently organized county body, in the Travelers hotel in Martinez.

The speaker of the evening was Warren McBryde, consulting engineer of San Francisco and former secretary of the California and Hawaiian refinery in Crockett who spoke on the industrial advantages of the county. McBryde called attention to the 75-mile waterfront of the county suitable for industrial development; he told of the leadership of the county especially on the Pacific coast, in agriculture, development, county government, recreational and educational conditions and the transportation facilities afforded by the two bays, three rivers, transcontinental railroads and ocean and river transportation.

From authoritative sources, he declared, the county has an annual output of more than $404,000,000.

He congratulated Contra Costa Associated on its organization, which, he declared, was bound to make for the betterment of the county and brought from Dr. B. V. Tassell, president of Californians Inc, the offer of that organization to assist in any way at any time.

The same message was tendered from the San Francisco and Oakland chamber of commerce and the California Development association.

WATER GIVES UP 2 VICTIMS OF FERRY MISHAP

OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 28.—The waters of San Francisco bay began today to give up the dead of the Peralta ferry accident of ten days ago in which five are believed to have lost their lives.

The first body was picked up near the Oakland side and identified as that of James W. Collins, a telephone company employee. Identification was made by Mrs. Collins.

WASHED ASHORE
At the same time efforts were being made in San Francisco to identify the body of a man washed ashore near the Presidio there. This body appeared to have been in the water only about three days. Should this prove correct it is not believed he was a victim of the Peralta accident. Marks of identification were few the body being clad only in a shirt and pair of trousers.

In all, three men and two women were believed lost from the Peralta when eleven days ago the ferryboat dipped its bow into the waters off Goat Island and sent a score or more of men and women into the icy waters of the bay.

BODY SIGHTED
Captain H. C. Hanson of the Southern Pacific ferryboat Sacramento sighted the Collins body floating in the water about midway between the Oakland mole and Goat Island.

Arriving at the San Francisco wharf Captain Hanson notified company officials and the police. A police boat went out to the Southern Pacific tug Ajax in command of Captain G. J. Larsen. Collins' hands were behind him, caught there apparently in an effort to remove his jacket when thrown into the water.

COMMUTER'S BOOK
In his pockets there was found a commuter's ticket book with all the "rides" torn out up to and including February 16. Other than a few coins and small pocket comb there was nothing else in the pockets. Officials began checking with surviving relatives of the three missing men.

Findley and Petker were almost immediately eliminated. Officials then telephoned Mrs. Collins, who described what her husband had been wearing the night of the Peralta disaster. Her description fitted almost minutely with the man's coat and his torn shirt. Portions of the shirt and the coat were taken to Mrs. Collins' home.

IDENTIFIED BY WIFE
"Those are his," she screamed. Then she fainted. She was revived by a physician and later left to view the body. Meanwhile, police were informed that a body had been seen floating off Fort Winfield Scott. A police boat was dispatched and the body finally recovered.

FAIR TO WIDOWS

Fairness to widows is proposed to the New York Legislature in a bill submitted as the result of investigation into existing conditions.

The bill would eliminate the archaic system of dower right, under which widows receive one-third life interest in real estate left by their husbands.

It would give her, instead, one-half of the real estate outright in cases where there are no surviving children, and one-third outright where there is more than one child.

There are other provisions, every one of which is equally in line with substantial justice.

Widows, in the past, have suffered because the present laws are based upon the old theory that women are not much better than servants of the men they marry.

Modern principles recognize the equality of the sexes.

In every marriage based upon honest agreement the wife actually becomes a partner in a mutual business enterprise.

She has her part to perform in making the business profitable.

She shares its dangers and its burdens.

She is entitled to share its rewards.

If her partner dies before she does, she is entitled to a fair share of the mutual savings made as a result of their work.

The proposed bill should for these reasons be enacted into law.

But in our opinion, the measure does not go far enough.

It seems—if reports of it are complete—to ignore the other side of the matter.

If a woman can be considered the partner of her husband, a man should equally be considered a partner of his wife.

In this day of sex equality it is nonsense to continue the theory that women need greater protection than men under the marital state.

There are as many masculine sufferers as there are feminine sufferers from the injustice of present laws.

Many a man, in the goodness of his heart, has decided to his wife property which he has earned by the labor of his own hands, only to find himself totally deprived of it after her death by some whim expressed in a will, or shouldered aside by sisters and brothers of the woman in cases where no will was left.

VIGOROUS HEALTH

BLOOD PRESSURE
There are many prevalent conceptions in regard to blood pressure. Both high and low blood pressures are considered diseases, but they are really only symptoms.

Normal blood pressure is supposed to be around 120 mm. at maturity and to increase with age. As a matter of fact the normal blood pressure should be somewhat lower than this and should not increase with added years. If it does it shows that there is an abnormal condition developing.

But just what is blood pressure? It is the force required to circulate the blood throughout the body. This force is developed by the contraction of the heart, and of the muscles in the blood vessel walls, assisted by the mechanical movements of breathing and muscular exertion. Low pressure is due to deactivating habits which have depleted the nervous energy. The fundamental cause of high pressure is always toxemia, but this may have given rise to complicating disorders, such as hardening of the arteries, kidney or heart disease, nervous tension, etc. The high pressure should not be treated as a disease itself, but the cause and complicating conditions should be sought and removed.

How can I determine just how much food I need? I do not feel that I am overeating, but still my weight has a tendency to go up.

The weight is one of the best indications as to whether one is taking too much food. If the weight goes beyond normal one is taking too much, at least of the starches, sugars, fats and protein. The quantity of other foods is limited so as to keep the weight at the normal point as determined by regular weekly weighings.

Is there any harm in taking warm baths in a warm room during the menstrual period? I have a headache and am overweight. What should I do for these?

MRS. H. P.
There is no harm in taking a warm bath during the menstrual period. Some cases may do well to avoid cold water during this period, but it is only a superstition that bathing should be entirely avoided. If you reduce your weight your general health should be greatly improved and your ankles will get strong, because it will not be under the strain of supporting unusual weight. Limitation of the diet, general exercise and walking should be effective.

How can I strengthen my eyes?
The eyes can be strengthened the same as any other part of the body, through properly graduated exercise, balanced with rest, together with proper diet for supplying the necessary building elements. Eye exercise include moving the eyes in all directions, looking alternately from near to distant objects and various focusing exercises. In addition to plenty of sleep the eyes should be relaxed for a few minutes whenever convenient during the day. Cold eye baths are also helpful.

DADDY DUSK

Twinnie was so proud of herself because, after having a most unguilty spill in the ditch with her new sled, she had gone down the hill, straight as a string and had left her sled marks a few inches beyond the record Joe had set with his new sled.

Joe stood looking at the marks. "Bet you can't do it again," he said, starting to race back up the hill. "I'll go two feet further than you did this time."

Twinnie only shook her bright red beret very hard. She was still a little out of breath from coming down the hill so fast.

Joe almost ran up the hill. Starting farther up the path than he had before, he gave a big run and then dropped down on his sled. The new sled bounced several times, just like a nice frisky horse, and then settled down and went whisking down the hill.

Joe held his breath as he reared the bottom of the hill.

Would he be able to beat Twinnie's record? He felt the sled slowing down under him. That wasn't so good. Maybe he could help it along a little by jogging up and down on it.

"Come on, old flier," he said. "Come on, more speed."

But the old flier didn't seem to hear. It was going slower and slower.

Another jog or two and maybe he could make it.

But the sled had almost stopped. Joe looked at the other sled marks. He was way behind even his own mark from the last ride Twinnie had left him far behind.

Dear Patricia Lee—

I am 18 and will be 19 in May and have 11/2 inch colored hair. I am very attractive and conceded not bad looking. My only trouble is this: I am living away from home with cousins of mine. I have met a fellow eight years my senior and have fallen in love with him. I know I have because I can't help thinking of him every minute of the day, and I know he loves me, too, because he has proved it many times. The trouble is he is not the same faith as I. Many times I think of going home, but I know I would not be able to stay there without him and he has asked me not to go for his sake. I have liked other fellows, but not as much as I love this one now. I have been going with him secretly for almost a year. If I married him it would break my mother's heart. He said I would always be away from my home if I married him, for his work keeps him here. Dear Miss Lee, I have cried myself to sleep many nights just thinking what to do. Can you help me? L.E.A.

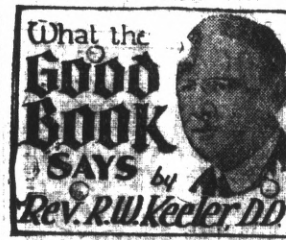

Dear Lea—

You probably feel terribly grown up, but my dear, eighteen is no great age. There is no objection to marriage when you are young, in fact I think it is a very good thing, but you should have your parents' consent. After all you have only known the young man a year, and none of your folks have met him. You should have an older person's judgment when you are considering marriage. Of course you feel that they will be prejudiced because he is of a different faith. There are people who are still far from tolerant in this respect, although it has proved no barrier to happiness in many marriages. If this is the only objection they find to the young man, however, then you will be able to decide for yourself if you can agree to respect each other's religion. But don't borrow trouble. Perhaps when your mother meets him, she will like him as you do, enough at least to consider your marriage.

SYNOPSIS

Cantor Rabinowitz, who has trained his son, Jackie, to be a cantor, finds the boy singing ragtime in a "beer garden." He skips the child and Jackie runs away. Ten years elapse. Jackie, now Jack Robin, obtains a part in a New York musical show through Mary Dale, a dancer. He returns home, but when his father learns that he is a jazz singer he drives him out. Dillings, the backer of the show, is jealous of Mary's interest in Jack and at dress rehearsal tells Lee, the producer, he wants his money back. Lee, taking everything on Jack, calls Mary to explain the situation.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

"Just a moment," Lee caught Dillings' arm and turned him about. "Look here, Mary, Randy thinks you're in love with Jack Robin, and—"

"And so he's taking his money out of the show," Mary gazed serenely from one to the other. "I must say it's charming of you to discuss my private affairs," she began to wax sarcastic.

"Well, you see, Mary," Lee attempted an explanation, "I've been trying to tell Randy that Jack means nothing to you except, of course—"

"See here, Harry, I asked you—" Dillings began, but he was cut short by Mary, who was smiling superciliously, and being very feminine.

"Except what, Harry?" she turned with the suave grace of a jungle panther about to spring. "Oh, you know, I just got a hunch that he don't like me," Jack shook his head sadly. "Maybe he thinks I wear these clothes on the street." They laughed again and Lee went back to his manuscript. Mary sat down on a trunk with Jack beside her.

"I'm sorry, Mary, if I'm causing you or Mr. Lee any trouble," Jack took the girl's hand in his and caressed it tenderly. "I know something must have been happening this afternoon or Mr. Dillings wouldn't have looked as though he had been eating lemons."

"That's all right, Jack. Don't worry about him. You've got a lot more things to think about."

"I know, but somehow he does worry me. I suppose he doesn't exactly approve of me." Jack stared quite gloomily out into the semilighted auditorium. "I suppose he doesn't think I'm good enough for you."

"Jack! Hush!" Mary put her hand over the boy's mouth. "You mustn't say such things."

"Well, there's one comfort in that, anyhow," Jack sighed. "I don't know any man who is good enough for you, Mary."

"Don't you, Jack?" she moved closer to him.

"No, I don't." He slipped his arm about her waist. They sat swinging their feet against the trunk for a few silent moments. "I—I love you so much, Mary," He brushed the tip of her ear with his lips.

"Everybody ready for the first act!" Lee signalled the orchestra. "Overture! Overture!"

CHAPTER XIV
The orchestra sounded the opening notes of the overture, picking up the threads of the most outstanding song numbers of the show. The house was dark. Behind the lowered curtain Gene was frantically clearing the stage for action. The chorus girls were lined up in the wings waiting to dance on, marking time, getting in step with the music. There was a tense air of expectancy. And both looked helplessly pathetic when severe of the girls fumbled a cue and Lee blew his whistle sharply to stop the dance and send them back to take the number again. It was a bad start, but a bad dress rehearsal in theatrical lore, means a good opening performance, so everybody gave the superstition the benefit of the doubt.

As the chorus once more took the same number the doorman lumbered up to Jack with a card in his hand. He held it out towards the singer.

"He's asking for Jackie Robin—is that you? He says his name's Yudelson, or something like that. Do you know him?" The doorman questioned.

Jack read the card: Yudelson, Dealer in Diamonds and Jewelry. "Yudelson! Of course I know him!" he exclaimed. "That's all right, Jimmy he's looking for me. Tell him to come on in. He's a friend of mine."

Jimmy turned away and met Moishe Yudelson already wandering dazedly towards the lights on the stage.

"Here, this way," he called. "Mr. Robin's over here." He led the elderly Jew to Jack.

"Mein Gott, Jakete! I wouldn't knowed you such a big boy you are," Yudelson caught both Jack's hands and pumped them up and down vigorously.

"Well, well! Yudelson! How did you get here?" Jack attempted to break in.

"Such a trouble I have finding you!" Yudelson was running on excitedly. "First I ask for Jackie Rabinowitz—I forget you changed it your name, and he says he didn't know you," he pointed after the retreating figure of the doorman, "and then I remember your mama told me I should ask for Jackie Robin, and he says—"

"Yudelson!" Jack shook the man to a stop. "You say my mama told you to ask for Jackie Robin? Did mama send you here? What's the matter," he questioned, frantic.

"Sorry, but I'm afraid I won't have time," the banker stalked across the stage.

Jack looked after the departing figure and tipped his hat with mock solemnity. But the gulp brought Mary and Lee out of their serious mood, and they laughed.

'HELEN OF TROY' FEATURES BILL AT RICHMOND

The most unusual and striking picture of the past five years! That's the promise from First National Pictures with "The Private Life of Helen of Troy" which opens its engagement of two days at the Richmond theatre beginning today.

Produced on a tremendous scale, but with a motif of satire and comedy rather than spectacular drama, the picture of John Erskine's best-selling novel of ancient times promises to become and most talked-of picture in many months.

Maria Corda, European actress, makes her bow to America as Helen, with Lewis Stone, Ricardo Cortez and more than a dozen other well known players in prominent roles.

Other film features include "Stop Snookums," a roaring comedy, and current news events. Coming next Friday and Saturday, "The Blood Ship," mightiest of all sea dramas, with Hobart Bosworth, Jacqueline Logan and Richard Arlen.

the screen, George Sidney, Tena

NEGRO SAVED FROM GALLOWS BY GOVERNOR

(By Universal Service)
SACRAMENTO, Feb. 28.—Thrice reprieved from the San Quentin gallows, George Waters, Sacramento negro convicted of the murder of his wife, won a commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment without right of parole today.

Governor C. C. Young extended clemency to the condemned man on the unusual grounds that the alleged murder victim, Mrs. Myrtle Waters, may be still alive.

"The case," declared Governor Young, "is wholly without a precedence in American jurisprudence, owing to the fact that no trace of the body of the alleged deceased has been found and except for the testimony of a nine-year-old child, no evidence of a homicide was adduced."

Dirigible L. A. Begins Return Journey From Panama Canal

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The navy dirigible airship Los Angeles took off from France field, canal zone, at 10:15 o'clock this morning to begin her return flight to her home station at Lakehurst, N. J., the navy department was advised by radio.

The gigantic aircraft was fighting a head wind with an average velocity of 30 miles an hour, which will retard the progress of the ship to about 10 miles an hour. With this speed the Los Angeles is scheduled to arrive at Guaymas gulf, of the south of Cuba Wednesday afternoon.

Lieut.-Commander C. E. Rosendahl, in command, said in a dispatch that he would probably make a stop there to refuel and provision. The tender Patoka to which the Los Angeles will moor is waiting in the gulf to receive her.

The flight of the Los Angeles to Panama demonstrated the superiority of the dirigible over airplanes for long-distance commercial flying, Senator Bingham (R), of Conn., told the senate today.

GODFREY WINS TEN-ROUND DECISION OVER UZCUDUN

FAST FIGHTING MARKS BOUT OF HEAVYWEIGHTS

WRIGLEY FIELD, LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—George Godfrey, the "black shadow of Leipersville" tonight won a ten-round decision over Paulino, Uzcudun, Basque woodchopper, in a sizzling bout at Wrigley Field.

It was a close match throughout, with neither doing any great damage except to the body. From start to finish they played for each other's stomach and Godfrey, in Referee George Blake's opinion, did the better punching.

For big men it was a fast bout. There were few dull moments in the ten rounds.

By his victory tonight Godfrey places himself in the top ranks of the heavyweights. Paulino was considered a possibility for a chance at Gene Tunney's crown.

Paulino's gameness and good condition enabled him to stay the limit. Time and again Godfrey rained punches to the body that would put out an ordinary man down and out. But the Basque refused to give up and fought back punch for punch, frequently giving the huge negro more than was dealt to him.

It was in the closing rounds that Godfrey really gained his advantage. After the eighth his body punching began to tell on Uzcudun and the Spaniard although fighting back every inch of the journey, lost most of his strength. Godfrey's pull in the weights also was a big point in his favor. He weighed 236½ pounds against Paulino's 192½.

UNIV. OF CALIF SHELL RACE ON ESTUARY FRIDAY

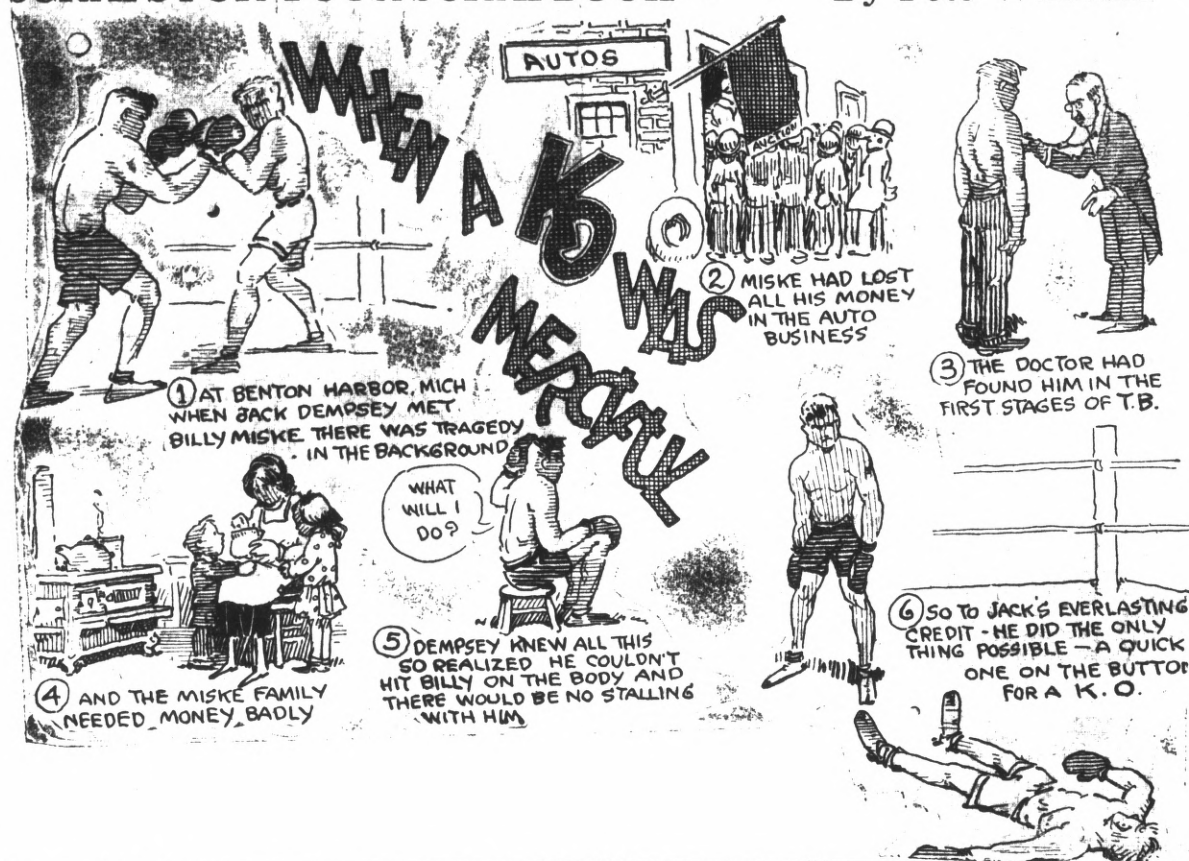

BERKELEY, Feb. 28.—Ten slim eight-oared racing shells will line up on the starting mark in the Oakland Estuary at the command "Ready, Aft!" Friday afternoon when the University of California will celebrate its annual Crew Day and inter-class regatta.

It will be the only chance the students at Berkeley will have to see their crews in action, as this year the regatta with Washington will be held at Seattle. The day's ceremonies will begin at 4:30 p. m. when Hardy Hutchinson, 1927 captain, will receive the first award of the Dean Witter cup from his donor, a former California crew man. The trophy will hereafter be presented each year to the oarsman adjudged the most valuable man to the Bear crew.

Four picked crews, representing the senior, junior, sophomore and freshman classes, will then race for the interclass championship of the university.

Six other junior varsity and junior freshman crews will then fight it out for the junior interclass title.

After the regatta Friday, varsity coach Ky Ebricht and freshman coach Russ Nagler will have only four weeks in which to get their combinations in shape for the trip to Seattle. Varsity, junior varsity and freshman crews will make the journey.

While the Pacific Coast title races will not be held until April 6, Ebricht is planning to leave Berkeley March 22 in order that his men may become accustomed to course conditions on Lake Washington. The Californians have been used to a salt water course, while the Seattle course is fresh water, with practically no current to speak of.

There is some likelihood that one or more of the Bear crews will stop off at Corvallis on the way north to set the course record on the Willamette River at the invitation of Oregon State College, which has just taken up rowing in a serious way.

Aljian Wins Tournament At Contra Costa Golf Club

George Aljian of Crockett won the Spring Tournament at the Contra Costa Golf Course with a gross of 87 and low net of 76. E. O. Mitchell, Harry H. Standish, W. S. Van Winkle, H. J. Hauser, J. C. Hanna, Harry Mudd of Martinez also played a fine game and would have won the tournament only for a bad break on the short No. 3, but Harry says he will conquer it the next time.

One of the largest lists to ever enter a tournament at the Pacific Links was out yesterday and as the course is now in fine condition, were repaid with an ideal day of golf. A steady wind made the play doubly interesting, and at the same time, resulted in higher scores for the day.

The Tournament Committee, consisting of Wm. Lewis, Jack Gribbin and Wm. Stephens, and the Club's professional, Wm. Rogers, are busy making the schedule for the spring months. A professional exhibition, the championship tournament, a few home-in-home matches, and other events of interest are planned for the near future.

HUDKINS TAKES A LEAF FROM GREY'S BOOK

A part from the late Harry Greb of Pittsburgh no fighter has yet appeared on the scene so skilled in the ungentle art of "bulling" an opponent as Ace Hudkins, who was well named when they tagged him the Nebraska Wildcat.

"Bulling" is not necessarily accomplished by a ready flow of chatter. "Bulling," as used here, indicates the bull qualities of sheer roughness and is often mistakenly confused with foul tactics. Harry Greb had it down to a fine art. Chiropractor charge enough for the savage message Greb used to hand out free of charge. After the first clinch with Greb a rival, scrapper knew that he was in for a slam-bang battle. Greb would pull and haul and jerk until the other fellow's teeth rattled.

Greb rattled their molars and ruined their morale at the same time. He "buled" them.

Get a load of Ace Hudkins in action and you see another prolific master of the art of bulling the heart of a rival. Hudkins is a wonder at it. Steer your optics at him as he waits impatiently for the bell to start the first round against Sergeant Sammy Baker. Get a load of him as he bounces out of his corner and starts on the run for Baker. Watch him at the end of a hard round as he jogs nonchalantly back to his corner. If he is hit and hurt by a hard punch the Wildcat responds by pressing forward and throwing a million gloves at his startled enemy.

All of this and more enters into the ungentle art of "bulling" your way to a decision.

And as I write this and marvel at Hudkins, I am wondering if the Wildcat will be able to bull Joe Dundee of Baltimore when they fight for the welterweight championship of the world.

JOE DUNDEE HAS BEEN "BULED" BY EXPERTS
It is not stating an original thought when I say that Joe Dundee of Baltimore, the 147-pound champ, is nobody's sap.

When Max Waxman was first bringing out Dundee in Baltimore Dundee did all of his early fighting on the platforms of Baltimore theaters, which were used as fight clubs on the nights the visiting stock companies were not booked.

Some pretty tough fellows were brought into Baltimore against Dundee. He beat so many good fighters that he could not get matches at all.

At that time there was some question of Dundee's gameness, but I have always thought that his manager, Waxman, deliberately started that canard in the hopes of persuading others to sign with him. Certainly Dundee has showed ample gameness in all of his fights around New York.

Dundee's gameness argues that Ace Hudkins will have a more difficult time in registering with his "bulling" tactics than ever before.

Joe Dundee has been "buled" by experts. They have roughed him and mauled him to no effect and at the end of each fight Dundee is generally poking that straight left and slicing with the right and that opened up Latzo's face when the title changed hands at the Polo Grounds.

DUNDEE IS A GREAT INFIGHTER

This Dundee-Hudkins fight should be a classic for those who expect their ringside seats to repay them in vicious mauling.

Dundee likes to fight at moderately long range and Hudkins likes to rip and tear in close. Their styles should make an attractive match because Dundee's stand-off and poke tactics assure the galleries that they will see some of the action.

Jack Delaney's popularity can be attributed to his style of fighting. Even the observers in the $3.30 seats can see a Delaney fight because he stands away and delivers his punches plainly. Hudkins, who fights best cut of a clinch, is not a gallery fighter. Only the ringsiders appreciate what is happening in clinches.

Dundee, a clever boxer, should be able to keep away from Hudkins' left hand, and I doubt if Hudkins will find it easy to score in the clinches. Dundee is one of the greatest infighters in the business and he is strong and wiry.

THE WILD CAT LOOPS THAT RIGHT HAND

The punch that may bring disaster to Dundee, if he is not wary, is a looping right hand which Hudkins throws consistently. They say that a boxer can't be hit by a right hand. I believe that Jim Corbett boasted it couldn't be done.

Jack Delaney kayoed Mike McGigue with a right hand; Carpenter raised a lump as big as an egg on Tommy Loughran's face with a looping right in Philadelphia one evening, and Lomski floored Loughran with a looping right hand. Boxers can be hit with a right hand, according to tradition, but Dave Shade kayoed Jim Slatery with an overhand right and the Buffalo victim of that punch was supposed to be another Corbett.

Joe Dundee wants to watch the looping rights which Ace Hudkins likes to chuck.

It was a right hand punch traveling in an arc that floored Sammy Baker the other night, although Baker was watching for it.

HAGEN IS THE HUDKINS OF GOLF

"Bulling" can be, and has been, applied by individuals or teams in every sport with successful results.

Princeton teams have always been willing and eager to "bull" their way to a win. Hard tackling, tackling that parried the teeth in the heads of Harvard footballers, was part of the Princeton system. Hard football, not dirty football, won for them, and hard football is "bullish" football.

Walter Hagen, the Rochester professional, is probably the most conspicuous example in golf. In a game which bars rough-and-tumble Hagen learned to "bull" them mentally. Gene Sarazen is the owner of the only nannys which Hagen failed to attach. Sarazen only grins when Hagen starts trying to burn him up.

Joie Ray, the little Chicagoan, who is back in harness, "buled" his opposition at every opportunity.

However, it is well to remember one thing. The team or the individual who upsets a rival by his hustling style or growl or stare must have something to back it up. That is important.

Ramblers Beat First Christians

Richmond Ramblers overwhelmed the First Christian church team in a basketball game played on the Roosevelt Junior high gym court last night by the score of 41 to 15. The Ellis boys accounted for most of the points for the winners with B. Ellis shooting 17 points to his brothers 16 points Hooper and Abby for the losers were high point men with 4 points each.

The lineup was as follows: Ramblers—Forwards, B. Ellis and Rico; center, A. Ellis; guards Ripley and Johnson. Substitutes Balo and Clifton.

First Christians—Forwards, Hooper and Showalter; center, Abby; guards Ford and Randall.

Baffle Bars Win Three Straight

The Baffle Bars, Richmond's only representative in the Oakland Industrial Bowling league, took three straight wins from the C. C. Breuners, by winning in the league and with only six weeks more there is a possibility that the team may go to Long Beach to bowl in the Pacific Coast bowling championship matches, to be held April 2.

Members of the team are: J. Murray, P. Buttach, G. Weston, G. Fayer and J. DeBarre.

Lutherans Win Second Series, To Play Wesley For Cage Title

Grace Lutheran by winning from the First Presbyterians in the Sunday school league game played on the "Y" courts last night established a record of 12 straight wins in the league, won the second half of the league contest, and made themselves contenders for the league championship to be played on the "Y" courts starting Monday. The score was Grace Lutheran, 48 and the First Presbyterians, 11. Because of their consistent showing in the last 12 games the Lutherans are picked by many to win the pennant and the gold basketball which will be given to the winning team.

St. Edmund's pulled the surprise of the evening when they defeated the Wesley Methodists 29-26. Wesley Methodists won 7 straight games during the first half of the league, and will be the opponents of the Grace Lutherans when they meet in the first game of the series Monday night.

In the first game of the evening Millicovich and Gillan had their usual contest for high honors in the most number of points hung up and Gillan came through with 17 to Millicovich's 14 points. For the Presbyterians H. Spiers and J. Morrison tied with 4 points each.

The second game was a fast one all through and many outstanding plays occurred, chief of which was the work of Bob Fenix, who played standing guard, was able to dribble the length of the floor and sink a bucket without being stopped by any of the five opposing players. For the winners Palmer made eight points and Goldie and Baker tied with five points each. Bertoni for the losers was high point man with 7 marks and Fowell came second with 6 points.

Here are the line-ups:
First Presbyterians—Forwards, H. Spiers and J. Morrison; center, L. Bowman; guards, J. Spiers and G. Bowman. Substitute was C. Bowman.

Grace Lutherans—Forwards, Santella and Gillan; center, Millicovich; guards, Baldwin and A. McLaughlin. Substitutes were Lane, Johnson and Wayne.

St. Edmunds—Forwards, Freethy and Baker; center, Palmer; guards, Goldie and R. Fenix. Substitute was F. Fenix.

Wesley Methodists—Forwards, Fowell and Bertoni; center, Buck; guards, Hoskins and Jenkins. Substitute Melin and Hall.

Oroville—Kaiser Paving Company constructing new rock crushing plant here.

Shipping Topic Of Lions Talk

Words of praise for the work of Congressman C. F. Curry of this district and the work of Senator Hiram Johnson, and Secretary of the Department of Commerce Herbert Hoover were voiced by Dr. J. J. Hogan, Vallejo Chamber of Commerce representative at Washington, in his talk to the Richmond Lions yesterday.

The talk concerned the relation of the merchant marine and the development of the United States Navy. "It is not a matter of production which we face but a matter of marketing our goods," said Dr. Hogan. "This country produces more goods than it consumes and it is a matter of great moment that the sea paths be kept open for our merchant marine by an adequate navy."

"Students of history point out that it has always been the case that national development was closely connected with the number and importance of the sea paths which that nation was able to keep open for its ships."

During the course of his talk Dr. Hogan took occasion to announce the coming of the Chicago Grand Opera Company to Oakland next month, and stated that the Eastbay should be complimented for its readiness to support the company.

Mrs. Elsa Gilreath Calfee sang several solos and was accompanied by D. J. Shaw. President Meeker of the Chico Lions club was a visitor and expressed his appreciation of attending a meeting of the Richmond club.

Week Observance Urged By Mayor

Observance of Narcotic Education week by the people of Richmond has been asked by Mayor Mattie Chandler in a proclamation issued yesterday. Following is the proclamation.

Whereas, narcotic drug addiction has become a major problem for all mankind, menacing the foundation of civilization and the future of the race;

Whereas, education is universally recognized as an important means of treating such ills;

Whereas, the world conference on narcotic education has called for one week to be observed throughout the world as Narcotic Education Week, the last week in February of each year, and has requested the co-operation of all individuals and organizations, including governments;

Now therefore, I, Mattie A. Chandler, mayor of the city of Richmond, hereby proclaim the last week in February 1928, as Narcotic Education Week, and invoke the active and earnest interest of the citizens of our city, and I also urge churches, clubs, societies and other assemblies to frame and adopt resolutions expressive of abhorrence of the evil, and request clergymen, educators and all persons in positions of influence to utter to youth and all others their solemn warning against even the least beginning of these insidious poisons, to the end that the full power of education may be marshalled to throw off this yoke of civilization.

J. Barry Escapes Serious Injuries

J. J. Barry, assistant fire chief of Richmond, escaped serious injury yesterday, when his machine crashed into a trolley pole on Macdonald avenue, between Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets.

According to Barry the brakes of the machine locked and as the street had been wet by a drizzling rain the machine skidded and hit the pole breaking it off at the base. The pole fell sideways instead of into the street with the result that more serious injury was averted.

Father McLaughlin, former pastor of St. Mark's church at Tenth street and Bissell avenue, paid a short visit to friends here.

BAY GIVES UP 2 VICTIMS OF FERRY MISHAP

The man was about 40 years of age, with sandy brown hair, blue eyes, and reddish-brown eyelashes. He was 5 feet 8 inches in height, weighed about 160 pounds, and was heavily built.

His coat was gone, but other articles of wearing apparel indicated that he was an outdoor worker of some type. He was wearing a blue and white work shirt, blue trousers with pencil stripes of white, long wool underwear, blue woolen socks, and high black shoes. No marks of identification could be found. A pilot tooth had been broken off. The body was found by Sergeant Eugene T. Adler, of E Battery, Sixty-third anti-aircraft company, stationed at the Presidio.

REOPEN PROBE
The finding of the two bodies came close on the heels of the sudden reopening of the probe into the disaster by U. S. Steamboat Inspector Frank H. Turner and Joseph P. Dolan.

The investigation had been tentatively closed on February 25. Then, yesterday Manuel Pacheco, a shop foreman living at 1451 East Thirty-fourth street, Oakland, who was one of the score or more passengers swept overboard that Friday night, appeared before the inspectors.

He was the first "overboard" passenger to so appear.

He testified that he had seen one woman drown that night and that even after he had been in the water for ten minutes the Peralta was "still down at the forward end; it looked like she had water in her hold," he said.
